

Science says Robert Pattinson Is the Most Handsome Man in the World

An ancient Greek mathematical method once used by artists like Leonardo Da Vinci, has declared the facial features of the Hollywood actor as the most “perfect” of them all.

This may seem straight out of the Twilight zone, but according to science, the shiny-vampire-turned-Batman actor Robert Pattinson is the most attractive man in the world. Researchers arrived at this conclusion using an ancient Greek calculation method, the Golden Ratio of Beauty Phi, which has historically been used to measure physical perfection.

In a list compiled using computerised mapping techniques by London-based cosmetic surgeon Dr Julian De Silva, Pattinson scored 92.15 percent to become the most handsome man in the world.

Enough with the Batman Movies Already

DREW SCHWARTZ

Robert Pattinson: 50 Shades of 'Nah'

PHILIPPA SNOW
